PERMISSION TO COPY

For Managers and Corporations

If you wish to purchase a download, have an article shipped to you, or obtain permission to make photocopies, enter the article title or product number in the search box on HBR.org. If you are not given the download option, we do not have electronic rights for this title and we can only ship you a hard copy and grant permission to make additional copies. For all other permission inquiries:

Permission to Copy

Upon being granted permission to copy a publication you will not be given a copy of that publication. A master copy must be purchased separately.

Request Permission via Fax/Mail

Download the articles and case studies request form (PDF). Use this form to request permission by fax or mail to photocopy articles and case studies. Please see page two of the form for pricing.

Download the book chapter request form (PDF). Use this form to request permission by fax or mail to photocopy book chapters for training use. The royalty charge is generally between $4.50 to $6.15 per chapter per copy. Maximum limit is four chapters from any one book.

Permission to Republish or Translate

Download the article/chapter republication in a book form (PDF). Use this form to request permission to translate or republish an article/chapter or excerpt of an article/chapter. Please note the Harvard Business School material must be 20% or less of your entire book.

For permission to republish a full article in a magazine, periodical, journal, or newsletter, please contact the New York Times Syndicate as indicated below.

Download the article/chapter excerpt republication or translation in a magazine, periodical, journal, or newsletter form (PDF). If you are planning on republishing an excerpt or exhibit from an article, please use this form and fax it to us at (617) 783-7556.

To translate an entire Harvard Business Press book, please contact the Harvard Business Publishing Foreign Rights Department at fax number (617) 783-7489 or via email.

Download the case republication form (PDF). Use this form to request permission to republish an HBS case or teaching note. We do not grant permission for any adaptation, edit, excerpt, or summary of any case; a case must be republished in full. No more than three HBS cases can be included in a textbook and the total HBS material cannot exceed 20% of the book.

Download the case translation for use as training handouts form (PDF). HBS cases are available in English (with a limited number available in Spanish). To request permission to translate HBS cases for distribution as classroom/training handouts, please use this form. If there are no translation restrictions on the requested case(s), the HBS royalty charge to distribute translated copies of the case will be the same charge as for distributing copies in English (generally $6.15 per copy for corporate, executive education, or non-degree course use).

If you have any questions, please feel free to email permissions@harvardbusiness.org.

Permissions

Copyright permission is the authorization to make a photocopy of a purchased, clean copy of one of our products. Each copyright permission covers a single copy, so you need to purchase one (1) copyright permission for each copy of the item you intend to distribute. Copyright permission is only the authorization to make a photocopy and does not include a master copy from which to make the photocopy. If you already have a copy of the item and only need to purchase copyright permissions, on the product detail page, increase the quantity for Copyright Permission to the number you need to distribute, lower the quantity of the PDF to zero (0) and click the red 'Add To Cart' button and then 'Check out' on the resulting page.

Digital Materials And Course Planning

HBP is pleased to offer its content for higher education use in a variety of ways, including a Course Planning system, which allows faculty to plan and organize HBP materials by course, with several delivery options. Learn more: <https://cb.hbsp.harvard.edu/cbmp/pages/home/>

Except for these options, we prohibit the posting of cases, articles, or chapters on “e-reserve” course pages for student access, as well as in “electronic coursepacks” that link to our digitized content and content postings on course management systems such as WebCT or Blackboard. Such unauthorized postings are equivalent to distributing our copyrighted content to students without permission, which infringes that copyright. This is so even if the content is being used for the first time and is password-protected, accessible only to students in the course, and taken down at the end of the course.
